DELAY IS SEEN IN DEBATE ON TRAINING BILL

Congress to Make Haste Slowly concerning Manpower Phases

COMPROMISE TALK IS HEARD TODAY

Sen. Taft, John L. Lewis Opposed to Compulsory Training Program

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, July 29.—A delay in congressional debate on peace-time conscription appeared likely today, in view of "compromise" talk designed to avert a stiff floor fight.

While John L. Lewis, CIO president, and Senator Taft (R., Ohio) joined the opposition to compulsory military training, Senator Barkley (D., Ky.), the majority leader, said that he favored giving members time to study the issue.

Barkley made it clear that he personally approved of some sort of a conscription program, but his comment raised the possibility that the senate might not take up on Wednesday the Burke-Wadsworth bill, as originally planned.

In the house, influential Democrats said that they wanted to "make haste slowly" with the manpower phases of the defense program. The house military committee will resume hearings tomorrow on the conscription legislation, with Secretary of War Stimson as a witness some time this week.

Text Is Completed

The senate military committee completed Saturday the text of the training bill, which would authorize registration of 42,000,000 men from 18 to 63, inclusive. It contemplates drafting by Oct. 1 about 400,000 men from 21 to 30, inclusive.

Suggestions for a compromise centered on a proposal to substitute military training of men between 21 and 25.

Lewis voiced his opposition to conscription yesterday after conferring with Senator Wheeler (D., Mont.), one of the leading foes of the program. The CIO chief said he was "in full agreement with Senator Wheeler on this thing."

Senator Taft, like Senator Vandenberg (R., Mich.), suggested trying a "voluntary system" of army enlistment before adopting conscription. Although some military officials have contended that such a plan would fail, Vandenberg predicted that 1,000,000 American youths would volunteer within three months.

Although congress was proceeding cautiously with the military training issue, it pushed ahead with other defense legislation.

A new $4,800,000,000 appropriation for the army and navy was headed for quick passage this week in the house, and probably in the senate.

Leaders said that a special $25,000,000 bill to provide more power in the Tennessee Valley Authority for production of aluminum for airplanes also would be disposed of in short order.

There was recurring talk that if congress could dispose of its defense bills in two or three weeks, a recess for a month might be taken, because the experts said the excess profits tax bill would not be ready for many weeks.

PAN-AMERICAN PARLEY TO ACT ON FINAL ITEM

Adoption of Defense Doctrine Expected Today At Late Session

CALL RESOLUTION "ACT OF HAVANA"

Expect Action to Place In History Alongside Monroe Doctrine

(By Associated Press)

HAVANA, July 29.—The conference of American foreign ministers in plenary session was expected to adopt today without a dissenting vote the American republics' doctrine of defense against the transfer, by conquest or other means, of European-held possessions in the western hemisphere to any non-American power.

The session was scheduled for 5 p. m. (EST).

Final committee action on a project expected by observers here to take its place in history alongside the Monroe Doctrine was completed early this morning, when the peace commission of the conference approved the draft of the convention covering the legal phase of the plan.

"The Act of Havana"

The plan itself, embodied in a draft resolution called the "Act of Havana," and the companion convention which may establish "regions of provisional administration" in any areas now held by non-American nations which "are in danger of becoming the subject-matter of exchange of territories or sovereignty."

Such administration, which may be put into effect by any one or any group of the American nations if the emergency is too great to permit consultation among all 21 members, would be established only on the understanding that when the emergency passed, affected regions would be returned to their original status or organized into autonomous territories.

Successful drafting of the "act of Havana," and the companion convention was regarded as a considerable personal triumph for U. S. Secretary of State Cordell Hull.

Hull, when he left the commission room shortly after midnight, obviously was pleased at having finished the tedious task of phrasing the possessions project to everyone's satisfaction.

"I am glad to say that our work is finished and our docket is cleared," he said.

Columbia allowed quick action about midnight when she withdrew.

State's Employment Service Observing 50th Anniversary

COLUMBUS, July 29.—The Ohio State Employment Service observes its 50th anniversary this week.

The system's 112 offices, however, will take no time-out from its day-to-day task of matching the talent of its thousands of applicants with the requirements of available jobs.

Ohio's first venture into the job-finding business was undertaken in 1890 when the general assembly authorized the state to cooperate with the cities of Cleveland, Columbus, Cincinnati, Toledo and Dayton in establishing public employment offices. The cities financed the initial setup, which in the first year located work for 8,982 persons.

Now a part of the state's unemployment compensation bureau, the employment service placed 83,163 persons in the first six months of this year.

In 1913, supervision of the employment service was given to the newly-created Ohio Industrial commission. Two years later, offices in Akron and Youngstown were added to the original five.

In 1921, the State Department of Industrial Relations took over direction of the system and in 1938 it was coordinated with the unemployment compensation administration.

State law now requires applicants for unemployment benefits to register with the employment service.

TRAFFIC TOLL PLACED AT 15

Injuries, None Serious, Result From Weekend Accidents Here

The district was free of fatal traffic accidents over the weekend, but 15 persons were injured in five automobile collisions investigated by Salem state highway patrolmen.

Three drivers were arrested as a result of accidents in which their cars were involved.

Eight persons were hurt when automobiles driven by Amil Nudi, 35, of New Brighton, Pa., and Robert Liposchak, 21, of Youngstown collided on Route 14, about two miles east of Columbiana, at 1:25 p. m. Sunday.

Treated at Hospital

Treated at Salem City hospital after the accident, the injured included: Nudi, driver of the one car, abrasions of left shoulder; Liposchak the other driver, small laceration above left eye; and the following passengers in Liposchak's car: Miss Doris Hrosar of Youngstown, bruised back; Mrs. John Hrosar, Youngstown, abrasions on left elbow; Miss Kathaleen Cottage, Conway, Pa., possible fracture of left shoulder; and Mrs. Josephine Liposchak of Youngstown, small laceration on head.

Mr. and Mrs. John Christy, who also were riding in Liposchak's car, were treated for minor injuries at the office of a Columbiana physician.

State patrolmen said the accident happened when Nudi was attempting to pass a car in face of Liposchak's oncoming automobile.

Nudi told patrolmen he applied the brakes on his car, planning to drop back into the line of traffic, but that the machine skidded on wet pavement directly into the path of Liposchak's automobile.

Liposchak was arrested on a charge of reckless driving and fined $10 and costs.

County's Budget For 1941 Lists Increase Of $24,863

LISBON, July 29.—Columbiana county's budget for 1941, as set up in requests for operating expenses by the county officials last week, was adopted today by county commissioners, showing an increase of $24,863 in the anticipated operating costs of the county government for next year.

Budget requests for this year totaled $627,391, as compared to requests for $652,254 for 1941, while anticipated revenue for 1941 of $652,465 exceeds by $38,000 the total receipts set up for this year. The increase is the sum listed as state and federal aid to the county for the aid of dependent children.

Included in the increased costs is a jump in the operation of the commissioner's office from $9,400 to $12,396; a grant of $4,990 for the operation of the agricultural extension service; requests for increased operating expenses of $950 in the probate court, $3,890 in the juvenile court, and an increase of $2,150 in the department of aid for dependent children.

An additional $4,000 for permanent improvements in the sheriff's department for the installation of a radio system and an increase of $10,000 to carry on the work of the soldier's relief department were requested, while a $2,356 decrease was noted in requests of the auditor's office, and $4,500 in the engineer's office.

To make up the $652,465 needed in the general operations fund for next year, the auditor's office has listed the following revenue estimates:

General property tax $439,265; classified property tax $7,500; cigarette tax $3,000; fees earned by county offices $96,000; fines, forfeitures and costs $3,600; sales tax $38,000; elections expenses withheld $10,700; state and federal grants for blind $18,000; state and federal aid for dependent children $38,000.

Birch is believed to have been walking along the tracks when he was hit. Coroner Arnold Devon is expected to rule accidental death, after making an investigation of the case.

The victim is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Patricia Lee, of East Liverpool.

The funeral service will be held at 4 p. m. Tuesday at the Martin funeral home, in charge of Adjutant Jack Webster of the Salvation Army. Burial will be in the United Presbyterian cemetery at Calcutta.

Temperatures Hit 90's Over Weeknd

Eleven drownings over the weekend raised Ohio's death toll of the heat wave to 70 and relief was still not in sight today.

"Continued warm," said the weatherman, despite the possibility of scattered showers predicted for Tuesday.

Bathers thronged to beaches and streams as temperatures continued to hit the 90's. It was 90 in Salem Sunday. The state's highest mark of the wave was set Sunday at Springfield with 104 degrees.

Motorists "cooling off" jammed the highways but the six weekend automobile deaths were far below the average.

Nazis Renew Raids After Early Attack Today Is Repelled

British Shoot Down 15 German Planes; London Admits Loss of Destroyer Wren; Claim Hits on German Objectives

(By The Associated Press)

LONDON, July 29.—English skies throbbed with the sound of aerial dog fights today as the powerful German air force, repelled with losses in a sunrise raid on the southeast coast, sent hundreds of planes against inland objectives.

Throughout the day Britain's airmen and anti-aircraft batteries battled the high-flying Nazi invaders.

The British officially fixed the German losses in the sunrise attack at 15—eight bombers and seven escorting fighting planes—but indicated the total might run higher. Unofficially it reached 23.

The German attack on the coast topped off a series of night raids, which the British countered with attacks on German-occupied France and the Netherlands.

The British said they bombed German oil tanks at Cherbourg, France, and also dropped bombs on a German air base on the Dutch coast.

In London, the admiralty acknowledged the loss of the 1,120-ton destroyer Wren, 27th to be officially announced.

On the Balkan diplomatic front it was indicated in official quarters at Bucharest that Rumania is willing to cede a narrow strip of Transylvania to Hungary, which claims the province as historic Magyar soil.

Are Nazis Ready?

While the battle over the English coast raged, the German high command on the continent took action which some quarters regarded as preliminary to the long-awaited final thrust at the British Isles.

This was a German order published by the French government at Vichy halting rail traffic between German-occupied and unoccupied France and barring the return of millions of French refugees to their homes in the conquered territory.

Informed German sources in Berlin, however, declared that Nazi authorities had opened railway and highway traffic at four points in order to speed the return of refugees and to facilitate harvesting.

It was recalled as possibly significant that an order giving the army command of all German railways preceded by a day the invasion of Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg.

Observers of the battle over the coast counted at least 100 German planes, about half of them bombers, as they swooped out of the cloud-streaked sky to the attack.

British pursuit planes and anti-aircraft batteries went into action and the heavens were quickly filled with bursting shells and the wreckage of broken planes as the defenders battled fiercely.

Along Mediterranean

In the Mediterranean area Italy claimed her airmen had chased British armored cars beyond the frontier of Libya into Egypt in a Sunday attack, damaging the cars with bombs and machine-gun fire. In an air fight, Italian gunners were reported to have brought down two British planes.

In Hongkong foreign quarters close to the Chungking government said China had unconditionally rejected Japanese overtures to stop the war and conclude a settlement between the two nations—largely, it was said, at the expense of other powers' interests in eastern Asia.

German warplanes, prior to the attack on the southeast coast, were driven out of Wales early today after a three and one-half hours' fight with British planes. The British said the Nazis dropped some bombs, but caused little damage.

In a northeast English town, however, three persons, one a woman, were reported killed in an air raid.

PREPAREDNESS BOOM

The classic theory of pump priming, which never worked out quite so well in fact as it did on paper, was that money distributed among the needy would cause employment as it was used to purchase a variety of articles. The trouble lay in the fact that relief appropriations, however enormous they might seem, dwindled in relation to the magnitude of the production system they were supposed to stimulate. Furthermore, the effect of the money was too diffused to be noticeable in any given quarter.

The classic demonstration of the classic theory of pump priming is what economists call a war boom, where money is spent in large quantities under controllable conditions. In the United States, which is in the first throes of a preparedness boom, more comfortable phrase than war boom, the impact of spending was visible in these quarters, among many others, on Friday:

Bethlehem Steel Corp. directors were informed at the close of their quarterly meeting that naval expansion has increased unfilled orders on the corporation's books to half a billion dollars—70 per cent above the largest previous backlog ever reported. National Industrial Conference board, finding a shortage of skilled labor, recommended a 50-hour week in place of a 40-hour week in industries working on government contracts. Contracts awarded in a single day by the army quartermaster depot at Philadelphia in an anticipation of increased enlistment included 1,039,000 buck towels, 191,000 Turkish terry cloth towels, 521,000 barrack bags. Bidding opened on 175,000 oil-skin raincoats, 400,000 yards of mosquito netting, a third of a million cotton undershirts, and corresponding amounts of cotton and wool socks, cotton shirting and suiting, herringbone twill and whiteback denim.

All this is part of the preparedness boom in the United States, which makes the pump priming of the last few years seem like the tentative gestures of amateurs setting off a carload of fireworks. It's going on all over the United States and is as much a part of national defense as fortifications in Panama—even more important a part because fortifications in Panama stay put while a war boom is the trickiest, most elusive phenomenon known to economists. It's here today, gone tomorrow, leaving nothing behind it but a trail of headaches.

RESIGNATION PRECEDENTS

There's a general feeling that making a sure thing of politics by holding one job while seeking another is poor sportsmanship, but certain exceptions are recognized.

Presidential and vice presidential candidates have been making a custom in recent years of resigning from executive and judicial posts, but sticking with gubernatorial and senatorial jobs. Agriculture Secretary Wallace, who spoke out of turn by saying he wouldn't resign, overlooked the fact his chief resigned as assistant secretary of navy to run for vice president in 1920 and that Herbert Hoover, whom he cited as a precedent for not resigning when the latter was secretary of commerce, announced he would resign within a few weeks after capturing the presidential nomination.

Some Democrats insist that if Mr. Wallace resigns, Sen. McNary should resign, because he is Wendell Wilkie's running mate. This does not hold water. John N. Garner actually ran for congress at the same time he was running for vice president and was elected to both offices. Charles Curtis remained in the senate until several months after his election as vice president. Sen. Robinson, Democratic vice presidential candidate in 1928, stayed in the senate. After all, politicians must eat, and it's a long time between elections.

It just happens to be a popular notion that men appointed to their jobs should have grace enough to step down while seeking a new post. While there is ample evidence that the same man who appointed Mr. Wallace to be secretary of agriculture also appointed him to be Democratic vice presidential nominee, there is merit in keeping up appearances. Voters like to think they have control of such matters in their own hands and can bestow favors or take them away.

BREAK IT GENTLY

There used to be a time when Americans would have liked to see on their diplomats' breeches to keep slick foreigners from stealing them in international conferences. In those days Americans didn't have much confidence in home-grown diplomacy.

Of course it's different now. Foreigners still enter conferences armed with nothing but a chisel, but American diplomats are flinty fellows on whose hardened hides a chisel makes scarcely any impression. At a time like this nothing could be more reassuring.

Down in Havana Latin-American representatives are interested in the answer to one question, though they ask it in a hundred ways. "What's it worth to the United States if we do what you want us to do?" President Roosevelt, himself, affixed the dollar sign when he asked congress to increase the lending power of the Export-Import bank by $500,000,000 to facilitate trade with Latin America. This stimulating request—the equivalent of five pounds of raw meat set before a Great Dane—was timed to hit the Havana newspapers about the same time the Pan-American delegates hit them.

A year ago when Mr. Roosevelt wanted half a billion dollars to excite the Pan-American spirit, congress, which then hadn't been scared out of its wits by the thought of Nazi missionaries indoctrinating Latin America, turned thumbs down. This year it's different, of course, perhaps not $500,000,000 different but changed considerably. Great things may ensue from the pow-pow at Havana but the thing Uncle Sam's children really want to know is how much it's going to cost them.

GERMANY HESITATES

Either Germany is supremely confident of being able to overwhelm Great Britain in a few days, or Germany is reluctant to begin a thing which must be done quickly or not at all. Otherwise, it wouldn't be turning to Balkan diplomacy at this time. Perhaps, as the British are saying with the grim humor which is supporting them in a crisis, the Nazis haven't been able to forge documents proving that they must invade Britain to keep Britain from invading Germany.

Opening of new diplomatic projects in the Balkans may be a precautionary measure; Germany may be locking the back door before proceeding with its attack on Great Britain. Nevertheless, it has not been forgotten so soon that Hitler's original plan behind the Siegfried line while Germany consolidated an empire in southeastern Europe. Has something, perhaps, persuaded Hitler to finish the job in the Balkans before trying to destroy Great Britain?

There remains only a month of favorable weather for completing the campaign against the British. Hitler is committed to the destruction of their empire; his prestige at home and abroad has been made to depend on the success of this climactic undertaking. Either there is preparatory work to be done in the Balkans before he can proceed, or for some reason or other the campaign is being delayed. There must be some explanation for trying to pacify Rumania, Bulgaria and Hungary before trying to obliterate Great Britain.

Your Children In Camp

Doctor Lists Pre-Vacation Precautions

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

It is often remembered that the modern habit of sending boys and girls to camp in large groups would probably not have been feasible or advisable fifty years ago. The object of camp life is primarily health. Modern sanitation and preventive medicine have made such gatherings really safe from the health viewpoint. We wonder why nobody thought of them in our grandfather's time, but in our grandfather's time, camping concentrations would have been hazardous, not healthy.

The greatest single danger that has been eliminated is typhoid fever. The experience of American troops in camp concentrations during the Spanish-American War with the frightful incidence of typhoid followed by the experience of the British army in the Boer war in preventing it by individual inoculation showed the way to safety from this ancient curse, and that was only forty years ago. Every child that goes to camp should have a preventive typhoid inoculation. It's true it often spoils several days of vacation with a slight fever or sore arm, but it can be done long before camp starts. The same may be said of diphtheria prevention.

Dr. Clendenning will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

Safe Water

The nature of the water supply will be investigated by any experienced camp director. If the camp secures its water supply from a city or village reservoir that is subject to frequent inspection, all well and good. Some camps own their own water shed, and can police it. If there is any question about the water supply chlorination is done.

The disposal of sewage, if trunk line sewers are not available, can be accomplished by septic tanks. Showers, regular bath equipment at camps are more sanitary than tubs.

Milk supply must also be investigated. Most of the diseases of children in the summer forty years ago were from milk. It sounds fine to say a camp has its own dairy herd, but unless this is carefully inspected it is a source of danger. Milk should never be delivered to camp in bulk—in cans. Nothing larger than quart bottles.

The more separation of campers sleeping quarters the better. When soldiers were herded in large barracks, during the last World War, contagious diseases broke out. When they were put in smaller sleeping quarters or tents this was reduced.

Physically Fit Campers

The preliminary physical examination to see whether the camper is fit for all the strenuous activities of camp is also a protection.

One of the great benefits of camp life is to correct capricious appetites. The emphasis on vegetables, milk, fruits and the elimination of an overabundance of sweets makes for the building of strong, hard bodies and the loss of softness.

Another good effect of camp in many cases is to get the child away from its dependent home atmosphere and put it on its own. Those possessive parents who spend their vacation near the camp so they can "see how the child is getting along" are spoiling the good effect of camping as much as those who bootleg candy and cake to their darlings.

"TITAN TOWER" by JAMES G. CHESNUTT

CHAPTER TWENTY-TWO

Linda's excitement had begun that first day, from the moment of her arrival. As she and Bill stepped from the car at the low, spreading villa which was the Blaine summer home, a photographer had popped from nowhere and snapped their picture. Resort photographers were on the lookout for new arrivals at the Blaine estate, because it was ten to one to make good society copy.

Now on the eighth day of Linda's visit to Wonderland, she was speeding across the lake in the Blaine speedboat. Mere-Maid II, with Merry in slacks and a blue form-fitting pull-over, at the helm. Spray splashed the goggles over Merry's eyes as the boat made lots of knots, and Merry's blonde hair, damp from spray, cascaded behind her head like a knight's streamer.

And in the stern, low-below the curving wake, Linda sat, snugly harbored in the curve of Bill's strong arm, an arm matching his face, which was now mahogany instead of the bronze she first knew.

The speedboat tore past the dock as Linda breathed a deep sigh, a sigh muffled by the roar of the motor's exhaust. Bill couldn't hear her, but he felt her relax and snuggle closer.

"Bill," she said, very close to his ear, in a whisper that was nearly a shout. "Isn't it perfect? I'm sorry it all has to end sometime, like a beautiful dream. . . . Don't you love it?"

"Not it, Linda," he answered, and his lips were very close. "You Y-O-U."

"And," he added, it "really doesn't have to end—ever—does it, Linda?"

Linda wondered.

How close her beautiful dream was to ending, Linda little realized. Nor could she guess the sudden shock with which the delightful island interlude with Dr. Bill Blaine and his friends was to be terminated.

On the evening of her eighth day at Tahoe, Linda's thoughts kept her awake late. Bill had told her he loved her; told her that day on the lake while Merry piloted the speedboat and they snuggled in the stern. So it had happened. It was coming true, the happy ending she had dreamed of, had yearned for. Bill had said their happiness never had to end.

Still, there was Mickey. How did he fit into the happy ending?

Thoughts of Mickey and Bill Blaine were all confused in her mind as Linda finally dropped off to sleep. Was Mickey all right? she wondered. Was he having a good time, being a good boy for Mrs. Blauer, hundreds of miles away?

And Bill Blaine was going to propose to her tomorrow, Linda, being a woman, knew that. Now Linda, is the time to tell him—now, before he proposes. . . . now.

The instant Linda was awakened it was Mickey who leaped to her mind. She couldn't have explained why. Some call it intuition or premonition or other imposing notions. The insistent pounding at Linda's bedroom door, punctuated by Merry Blaine's voice calling her name, awakened her.

Linda was wide awake as she opened the door, to be greeted by a wide-eyed Merry.

"It's a telegram for you," Merry said. "The postmaster's on the phone. It's from Capitolia, he says."

Linda's hand flew to her throat. But she said nothing. She was already racing to the telephone.

"Yes, yes," Linda fought to keep her voice steady. "This is Linda Morton. Read it to me, please."

Each word she heard through the receiver chipped a piece from Linda's chilled heart, and she bit her lower lip until a bright red line showed under her teeth.

"Mickey ill," the postmaster read. "Doctor said appendicitis—must operate. Need you. Try not to worry, dear Bertha Blauer."

When Linda had replaced the receiver and turned from the phone, she faced a little group gathered about her, none of whom she saw. Her eyes, which were filled with tears, were wide and staring. She looked directly at Bill Blaine, without seeing him, and said—as though to herself:

"It's Mickey. He needs me. He's sick."

Bill Blaine said nothing. It was Merry who spoke.

"Mickey?" she asked, not understanding. "Your brother, dear? Don't cry—he'll be all right. Buck up!"

While they watched, astounded, Linda burst into wild, uncontrolled laughter; laughed until the laughter broke into sobs and she buried her head in both hands.

"My brother, my brother?" she gasped. "He's my baby. It's Mickey. It's my son, don't you understand? They're going to operate on him a little baby, and I'm not there. His mother's not with him! His mother's . . ."

She broke off into hysterical sobbing.

"Linda!" Bill shook her sharply by the shoulder. "Linda, snap out of it!"

Bill Blaine was not too surprised, despite Linda's hysterical revelation, still to be the doctor.

Suddenly—as suddenly as she had broken into her fit of hysteria—Linda was herself again. She sat erect, dabbed her eyes and looked straight at Blaine.

"Bill," she said, and she was no longer crying. "I should have told you long ago—about Mickey, I mean. I was going to tell you tomorrow—today. But now it doesn't matter, Mickey's all that matters. I have to go to him. Now!"

"It is . . . well, it is a surprise," Blaine said, looking from Linda to the rug under his feet.

"Does it . . . does it make such a great difference, Bill?" Linda asked. "This isn't the way I'd planned to tell you. . . ."

"Of course it doesn't darling!" It was Merry who spoke, enfolding the other girl in her arms. "Nothing makes any difference—except getting you to your baby right away."

"Bill," Linda said eagerly. "Is there any way of getting a plane at the lake? Could I charter one . . . ?"

It was quickly arranged. The Blaines had a neighbor with a private plane quartered at the nearby airport. The request to borrow the plane for the emergency flight to Santa Cruz was no sooner made than it was granted. Merry raced about the house helping Linda pack and getting ready for the flight.

Of that flight to the coast, alone in the plane with the pilot, Linda preferred not to remember. She had sworn, never to fly again after the crash which killed Mickey's father. But now it was Mickey's life which was at stake.

After the first twinge of recollection at the takeoff, she had forgotten fear. With her mind full of thoughts for Mickey's safety, there was no room for her own qualms. But she did have time to think how ironic it was that flight, the means of transportation she had forewarned because of one tragedy, was the means to which she turned as a savior in an emergency.

After the landing at the airport, the ride by taxi to Mrs. Blauer's cottage seemed interminable. Linda, nervous and distraught, thought she would never arrive.

When she did reach the Blauer cottage, she received another shock—but this time not so unpleasant. Mrs. Blauer, her face worn with worry but joyfully surprised and relieved to see her so soon, admitted Linda.

"Ssh, now! Don't let go now, Linda," Mrs. Blauer said, foreseeing the tears which Linda strove to hold back. "The darling'll be all right, don't you worry. The doctor's in with him now. I moved him into my big bed when he first took sick, so he'd be comfortable."

As Linda tip-toed, hurriedly but silently, into the sick room, she first saw Mickey, very tiny and out of place in the big spool bed, his face flushed and his eyes red from fever and tears. Then she saw the doctor was not the only one with Mickey. Linda lay prone on the bed, her hat falling unheeded from her head, her arms stretched toward her baby.

"Hello, mummy," Mickey said plaintively. "Where did you go?"

"Far away, darling," Linda said, fighting for control of herself. "Don't worry, mother's here and she's never going to go away from her Mickey again."

"Look, mother," Mickey said. "Steve's here."

Mickey was right.

It was Steve Hubbard who stood beside the country doctor at the bed, anxiety etched in his face; it was Steve's presence that was Linda's second shock.

"Yep," Steve could still summon a smile. "Just Old Mother Hubbard—you can't keep him away from his kids."

"Hi!" Mickey tried to laugh. "Steve's a man; he isn't a mother."

"I'm afraid," Linda said, "that he's a better one than I am."

The doctor interrupted her.

"I'm Dr. Jepson, Mrs. Morton," he said. "I'm afraid your little boy has a bad appendix and we'd better get it out right away. His nausea started yesterday, followed by mild fever around 100. He complains constantly of abdominal pains and we've noticed occasional muscle spasms. Surgery, although unusual for a child so young, isn't."

"Doctor," Linda said abruptly, "did you take a blood count? Forgive me, but I'm a nurse, you see."

"Well, now," Dr. Jepson expanded himself with dignity, as though his professional worth had been challenged. "I feel I've had enough experience with such cases."

"Did you take a blood count?"

"Well, as a matter of fact," Dr. Jepson mopped his gleaming brow, "with all the confirmatory symptoms, I scarcely thought it necessary. Of course, if you are not satisfied . . ."

"It's not that at all, doctor," Linda answered. "But, please, let's . . . let's be SURE!"

OUR READERS

DOGS AND RABIES

Editor, The News:

Well, our Salem News is full of dog items on date of July 26 about rabies and rabid dogs.

We have the article of Dr. Clendenning and then we have a county report of dog licenses issued and amount spent for serum for people exposed to "rabid" dogs. Dogs don't seem to go mad in Columbiana according to the report. Why are they so well satisfied there? E. Palestine's record not bad either.

How can we know when a dog is mad? How can the every day person know when to take treatments and when not to? I quote you from the Ohio State Board of Health at Columbus, to which the heads of all suspected mad dogs are sent.

"Report of examination for rabies":

Negri bodies are usually very small and few in number and hard to find. The report of either negative or positive is not always conclusive evidence of rabies. Negri bodies are found on the brain of a rabid dog. In early stages these are not easily detected and the clinical diagnosis must more or less be depended on. That is the report of a veterinarian who has seen the dog in action.

There are two kinds of rabies: the "furious or vicious" where the animal snaps at every moving object, and the "dumb" rabies where the animal has a locked jaw and cannot snap at objects. The furious or vicious kind eventually become "dumb rabies" as their jaw becomes paralyzed.

In the early stages of furious or vicious, the animal may: Change in disposition—more affectionate or sullen; wander away, snapping and biting; refuse food and especially water; change of voice—half bark and half howl; paralysis of hind quarters; do not froth at mouth or have fits.

Now "dumb rabies"—Dogs do not snap and bite; do not become violent; act as though it has something stuck in throat—do not put hand in mouth to try to dislodge; dogs are not as a rule noisy; emit sort of a stringy saliva from mouth. This is the dangerous "virus of rabies."

Phenol and Iodine are of little value in destroying this virus when applied to bites.

This virus is not harmful if not at body heat, that is, to be active it must be contacted as it comes from the dog. The Pasteur treatment is a preventive and not a cure and if to be taken it should be done promptly. This consists of anti rabic serum injected in the arm, leg or abdomen every day for about two weeks. This builds up your resistance to the germ action and thus kills any hold on your nervous system, as this disease acts on paralyzing the organs. The nearer to the brain a bite occurs the sooner you should start treatments.

The purpose of this article is to acquaint those who do not already know about this and to try to save some of the faithful dogs that may act a little strange at one time or another and have some one yell "mad dog" and have it killed.

Don't be stampeded into yelling for serum if a dog crosses your porch or yard, or you live on the same street where there was a bona-fide rabid dog. These are scarce. Don't get panicky. State your case to your doctor and unless you were exposed directly to the dog there is no cause for alarm. If you can show this beyond a doubt of your direct exposure then take the treatment, otherwise, no. There are also fatalities in treatments.

Take everything into consideration and maybe you will not need the treatments. If you do not really need them you are a great deal better off without them.

CMTC Soldiers Not On Exempted List

WASHINGTON, July 29—Service in the Citizens Military Training corps will not provide exemption from compulsory military training under the legislation pending in Congress, officials said today. They added, however, that a man with such training probably would start "on a little higher level" than others drafted for the proposed training period. With such a start, they said, "CMTC men might be given ranks as non-commissioned officers for the compulsory training. They also said that Reserve officers would be exempt from conscription because they already were subject to call for active service."

THIS CHART, we hope, will give you a better picture than could a thousand words of the recent amazing improvement in Gulf gasolines. It is based on a scientific test of gasoline quality today—a test that is used by many of our competitors, as well as by ourselves. The chart shows the fair comparative measure of step-up in both GOOD GULF and GULF NO-NOX . . . a step-up which is no intangible "engineering triumph" but one which may be enjoyed by you . . . in your car!

In Columbiana, expenditures for the new system will approximate $56,000, while those in Lisbon will run about $63,000. In connection with these changes, it will be necessary to place a new overhead long distance cable from Salem to Columbiana, and from Columbiana to East Palestine and Lisbon. This part of the program will cost about $135,000 and will provide increased facilities for calls between Salem, East Palestine, Lisbon and Columbiana.

One effect has been to allow steelmakers to make progress against backlogs and in some instances deliveries have been improved slightly in the case of some products pressure is still heavy, particularly in semi-finished steel, large tonnages for export to Great Britain, some going by way of Canada for partial fabrication, representing a problem to producers.

In spite of the slight recession in buying steel production continues at a high rate, most mills making some increase in activity and others holding to their previous rate. Practically all available blast furnace capacity is active and repair work is being expedited on such as are out for relining. Foundry melt is only slightly affected by the summer period and with resumption of automobile production will be at high rate.

MUCOUS CONDITION IN HEAD INCREASED BY CONSTIPATION
Warren Lady Says Bardex Tonic Priceless

"Bardex Tonic has given me such wonderful relief that I think it is priceless," said Mrs. Mattie Wright, of Warren. "I've been constipated a lot for several years and suffered from many ailments as a result. My stomach was in a very bad state, and I had a great amount of trouble retaining my food. A bloated condition from gas would often bring pressure around my heart that frightened me considerably and it would be very difficult to breathe. My stomach felt as if something was burning in it and my breath was so bad I didn't dare go near other people. When my constipation got real bad I'd catch cold easily and that would increase the mucus condition which had been serious with me of late. In the mornings my head and throat would clog up and it would be noon before I felt comfortable enough to leave the house. A relative of mine passed away with cancer of the stomach and naturally that burning sensation had me frightened. I've used almost the whole six bottle course of Bardex Tonic now and can hardly believe I am the same woman. The first bottle gave me splendidly thorough constipation relief and by now all its results are almost gone. My stomach feels much stronger and I eat heartily. My breath is much better and the improvement in elimination has made it possible to avoid catching cold so much. My kidney's too are a lot more regular since I've been taking Bardex Tonic."

Note Mrs. Wright's reference to the laxative aid of Bardex Tonic in common cold prevention. Bardex Tonic contains valuable alkalies for neutralizing acids (acid indigestion) and is not an old-fashioned nasty tasting medicine.

Pennzoil Service Center Helps Motorist To Protect His Auto Investment

PERIODIC CHECK AVERTS TROUBLE

Careful Driver Doesn't Wait For Something To Happen

Pennzoil products and Pennzoil service, as exemplified by the Pennzoil Service Center at Jennings ave. and W. State st.—there is a great combination—a combination which is keeping countless automobiles on the road today.

Regardless of the make of the automobile or the price that the motorist pays for it, every car must eventually find its way into a garage or service station for attention.

Naturally, the motorist who thinks twice about the investment he has in his automobile, will do the thing that is bound to take care of that investment in the best way possible.

That's why hundreds of motorists make periodic visits to the Pennzoil Service Center. These motorists do not wait for something to happen. They see to it that nothing does happen and they are the folks who usually have the best luck with their driving.

Naturally, it isn't a matter of luck at all. Some cars you see on the streets day after day just seem to run and run without trouble of any kind. That doesn't just happen. It is the result of management on the part of the car owner. And it pays big dividends.

Philco Conservador Shown At Art's

With the greatest demand of the housewife being economy of space and operation in the modern kitchen, the sensational inner-door of the new Conservador refrigerator was tailored to meet that need. A five-foot Conservador with the inner-door has been engineered by Philco to accommodate the same amount of food that fills the conventional six-foot refrigerator. After filling the ordinary six-foot refrigerator on the left, under normal, every-day conditions, the housewife above took exactly the same articles and the same amount of food and placed them easily in the five-foot Conservador. In addition, she was able to put in the unique inner-door her butter, eggs, cheese, milk, etc.—all those most frequently-used foods, which are then immediately available without any annoying groping at the rear of the refrigerator or rearrangement of its contents. Economy of operation as well as space is provided by the inner-door, since surveys have proven that 50 percent of all the trips to the refrigerator are for the foods placed in the inner-door. The inner-door can be reached without opening the rest of the refrigerator to the warm house air. Consequently, the Conservador maintains a maximum degree of frigidity with a minimum use of electric current.

Of course it costs something to have the car checked regularly, lubricated and kept in repair. But the cost is nothing in comparison with expense of a repair job that is necessitated, for example, by lubrication failure.

Pennzoil products are known throughout the district. So is the Pennzoil Service Center here. It's a combination which means every thing to the smart motorist who is willing to spend a dollar to save ten.

LET PARIS AID YOUR VACATION

Will Take Cleaning Problem Off Your Mind; Cost Is Slight

Really enjoyable vacations are almost impossible without several changes of clothing, regardless of where you go or what you do. It's about time to give the old "work togs" at rest, slow them away and get into something else.

The fisherman or the outdoors man may scoff at the clothing theme but, whether he knows it or not, cleanliness is more to be desired in these situations than anywhere else.

At any rate, a vacation camping at the edge of some quiet lake, a sojourn at the seashore, auto traveling or a visit with the home folks—all these things require appropriate clothing.

And it is not always necessary to dent your vacation bankroll by expensive purchases. You'll find the Paris Cleaners ready and willing to do whatever they can to help make your journey a little more pleasant. They'll go a long way toward solving the clothing problem and leave you a little more ready cash for other expenses.

And you can make their plant your clean-up headquarters after the trip. They'll do all the cleaning and your vacation ending will truly be a happy one.

Private Peat and the Little Peats

If anyone wonders what became of Private Peat of World War fame, this picture reveals the answer.

For here is Private Peat, whose book by the same name was a post-war best-seller. And that trio of charming misses saluting him are his three lovely daughters. Private Peat came home from the war and settled down to the more-or-less quiet task of being a lecture manager. Many of the world's best-known lecturers are managed by this World War soldier.

This happy foursome was snapped at the Ford Exposition, New York World's Fair, where they were entertained along with some 200 stars of the entertainment-lecture field with lecture managers gathered from such distant points as New England and the Middle West.

The Ford pavilion is continually the meeting place of men and women well known throughout the country. Writers, artists, explorers,

Martin Retreads Are Guaranteed

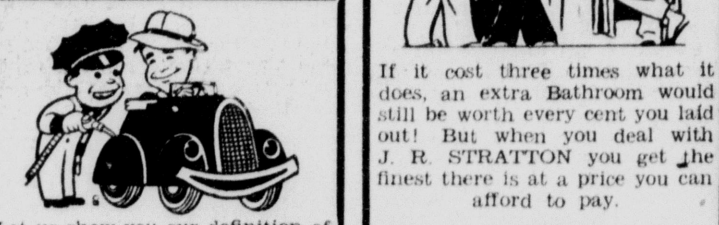

It's not a case of using something second-hand, something not as good as new when you have good tire casings retreaded at the Martin Tire Sales on E. Pershing st.

Kenneth Robenstine knows the tire business from the mixing and compounding of the ingredients to the final process, and for this reason when he tells you that your tire casing can be retreaded and that it will give the same service as when new, he means it, and what's more, will back it up with a guarantee.

It's all a case of the condition of the casing, according to Mr. Robenstine. If the casing has not been damaged, it's just like having your shoes resoled to have a new tread vulcanized on the old casing, and that's why Martins know they can guarantee their work.

There are many motorists whom Mr. Robenstine can point out to you here in Salem who have driven retreaded tires for more than 20,000 miles and at a cost of about one-third that of a new casing.

FEED MIXTURE AIDS PORKERS

Salona Supply Company Plan Proves Inexpensive One

The Salona Supply Co., on W. Pershing st., has some interesting and profitable figures to give the hog-raiser. These are not fairy stories, but facts that have been proven right here on our farms.

The plan is simple enough—it's just a case of combining Master Mix Hog Supplement with the corn on the farm which does give the right balance to produce the extra weight on the hog faster and at less expense to the farmer than if he attempts to feed only his own grains.

Figuring the corn on the farm at 65 cents per bushel, 100 pounds of pork can be made for $49.94 cents, and it is done quicker, thus getting the hogs to market when they will bring a better price.

Management of the Salona Supply Co. will give you actual figures of farmers who have been having this experience. Unless you can equal this record, it certainly is good judgment to investigate further.

Salem Riders Lose To League's Top-Ranking Team, 13-10

ALLIANCE CLUB TIGHTENS GRIP ON FIRST SPOT

Defeats Salem for Third Time of 1940 Season Here Sunday

Strengthening its hold on first place in the five-team Penn-Ohio league, the top-ranking Alliance Polo club defeated Salem riders for the third time of the current season, 13 to 10, at the Salem field yesterday.

The victory was the Alliance poloists' sixth in seven games to date, placing them two games ahead of the second-place Salem team.

Votaw Absent
Missing from the lineup as the Salem club suffered its fourth setback of the season was J. B. (Pete) Votaw, veteran No. 2 man, who was injured in a fall from his horse during a game last Wednesday. Votaw, kept out of action by a shoulder injury, watched the game from the sidelines.

Despite Votaw's absence, however, the Salem riders gave a good account of themselves against the stiffest opposition the Penn-Ohio league has to offer. The outcome of the game was in doubt until the final chukker when Alliance counted two goals while holding Salem scoreless to put the game on ice.

The Salem riders, starting slowly, fell two goals behind in the first chukker and trailed 6-3 at the close of the second period, but a rally in the third chukker brought them within one goal of tying the score. Alliance led 7-6 at halftime after being outscored three goals to one during Salem's third-chukker rally. The Salem club caught up with Alliance in the fourth period which ended with the score deadlocked at 9-9, but Alliance again moved to the front by outscoring Salem, two goals to one, in the fifth chukker.

Salem went scoreless in the sixth period while Alliance chalked up two goals to seal up the decision.

Lead Scoring
Top man in Alliance's high-scoring attack was Jim McCoy who tallied six of his team's 13 goals. Ray Moff, hitting more accurately than he has in any other game this year, led Salem scoring with five goals.

Spectators at the game were entertained at halftime by the smartly-dressed Troop F Lancers of the Ohio national guard who rode through a number of intricate military maneuvers, displaying skilled horsemanship and training. The troopers were led by Capt. Don Austin of Ravenna.

The Salem club has an open date on its schedule this Sunday, but will return to action the following Sunday, meeting Pittsburgh North Hills at Pittsburgh. The Salem riders' next home game will be played Sunday, Aug. 18, against Canfield. A horse show will be an added feature of this game.

It's The Heat, Fans Claim, As Reds Split With Phils

NEW YORK, July 29.—The Cincinnati Reds, who have been showing their heels with plenty of distance to spare to the other clubs in the National league, shared a somewhat universal hope for relief from high temperatures as they faced the first of a three-game series with the Giants today.

Whitey Moore, trying for his fifth victory, was called to the mound by the Rhinelanders to cross curves with King Carl Hubbell for the Giants.

The Reds swept a three-game series from the third-place Giants last week, eliminating them for a time as a potent pennant threat. They went on to brush aside Brooklyn, in second place, for an eight game lead but the best they could do with the Phillies, who they found in the cellar, was to break even. Fans said it was the heat.

The Reds won the opener of a double header in Philadelphia yesterday 7-2 but lost the nightcap 4-1 as the temperature soared to 100 degrees in Shibe park.

Hidden Ball Trick
Jim Turner permitted only seven hits for his sixth straight win as the Reds socked three Philly pitchers for 14 safeties in the opener. Shortstop Bobbie Bragan homered for the Phils in the second inning. In the third he pulled the ancient hidden ball trick on the usually alert Bill Werber to tag him out at second base.

Successive home runs by Ival Goodman and Frank McCormick accounted for three runs in the fifth inning, however.

A series of singles gave the Phils three runs in the first inning of the second game, which were enough, with seven-hit pitching, to give Cy Blanton his fourth victory and set Bucky Walters, the ace Cincinnati hurler, down in defeat. Walters, who was trying for his 16th triumph of the season, gave up seven hits in seven innings.

Carrollton collected 13 hits off "Lefty" Hannon of Placentia, but the best the Merchants could do was to count one run in the second inning, two in the seventh and one in the ninth.

BUCK NEWSOM'S STRING HALTED AT 13 STRAIGHT

Detroit Pitcher Learns You Can't Win 'em All, Loses To A's

BY JUDSON BAILEY
"You can't win 'em all," they say in sports, but big Buck Newsom with the great heart isn't one to be philosophical about defeat.

Up until the 11th inning yesterday he still thought he could beat any team in baseball at any time.

It was a combination of circumstances that undermined him after 13 consecutive victories and gave the Philadelphia Athletics a 9-5 decision over the Detroit Tigers.

Melted Down
The temperature in Briggs stadium was over 90 degrees and Newsom was making his first effort since suffering a broken thumb 11 days previously. He was strong and wild at the start, fanning ten and walking seven, but along the way Bobo simply melted down.

The defeat lost Detroit half a game of its American league lead as the Cleveland Indians divided a doubleheader with the Washington Senators, the Indians taking the first 6-3 and losing the second 9-1.

The New York Yankees staved off the spectre of the second division by splitting two games with the Chicago White Sox. It took a spectacular home run barrage for the world champions to win the first game 10-9. Charley Keller hit three home runs, Joe DiMaggio two and Babe Dahlgren one.

In the second game the Yankees made four errors and were stifled by the five-hit flinging of Lefty Thornton. Lee as the Sox won 8-4. The Boston Red Sox swept two games from the St. Louis Browns, 3-1 and 13-10. In the first game the Sox were held to five hits, but got 22 in the nightcap.

Reds Split
The Cincinnati Reds gave up a game of their big lead in the National league by splitting a bargain bill at Philadelphia, the Reds taking the opener 7-2 and losing the afterpiece 4-1.

The Brooklyn Dodgers' twin triumphs, 3-0 and 7-14, ended a six game losing streak for Brooklyn and four-game winning string for the Cards.

The surging Pittsburgh Pirates swept two from the Boston Bees 5-2 and 7-3 to pass the Cards and take fifth place while dropping Boston into the cellar.

The New York Giants ended a three-day hitting famine by getting ten safeties in beating the Chicago Cubs 8-4.

Salem Team Comes From Behind In 7th To Gain Victory

A six-run rally in the seventh inning gave the Salem Eagles softball team an 11-10 victory over the Minerva Eagles at Centennial park yesterday.

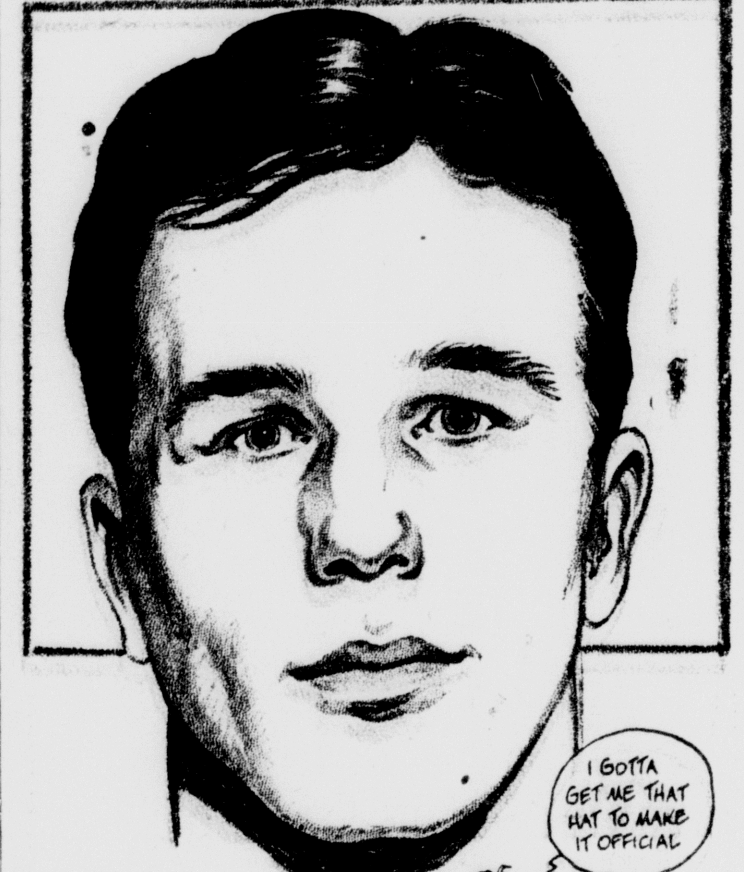

The Salem club trailed by five runs going into the last half of the seventh when they broke loose with a six-run outburst to win.

Both teams collected 13 hits in the seven-inning contest.

INDIANS MOVE HALF-GAME ON DETROIT CLUB

Split Double - Bill With Senators To Gain On Tigers

CLEVELAND, July 29.—The razor berry season is in full swing hereabouts but the Cleveland Indians don't care for any more.

They received their longed-for help of many a year as they split Sunday's double header with the Washington Senators.

Although Al Milnar hurled a masterful 6-10-3 victory and the Tribe gained a half a game on the beaten Detroit Tigers, the crowd of 20,000 fans howled their derision as five pitchers tossed away the nightcap 9 to 1.

Milnar scattered seven hits in his 14th victory and all of Washington's runs were made possible by Indian misplays. A fumble by Lou Boudreau set up a run in the first inning and misuses by outfielder Ben Chapman allowed two more in the third and fifth.

The Clevelanders cinched the game with a four-run blast in their half of the third frame, during which they rapped out five singles and sent Walter Masterson to the showers. Four more singles in the fifth inning yielded the final two runs.

Smith Knocked Out
Starting the second game, the Senators led off with a double, two singles and a triple, yielding three runs, and that was enough for Al Smith.

Mel Harder replaced him. The first four batters got hits in the third inning and Harder went to the showers. Joe Dobson gave up a single with the bases loaded and Washington piled up four runs in that frame.

Dobson gave up another run before joining the parade. Johnny Humphries held the Senators scoreless for three innings but the Senators got to Bill Zuber for one more in the ninth.

Lanky Sid Hudson mystified the Indians and let them down with six hits.

The Indians are idle today before opening a series with Boston here tomorrow night.

Sheen Softball Team Is Winner

PARLEY TO ACT ON FINAL ITEM

Adoption of Defense Doctrine Expected Today At Havana

an amendment she had submitted to the commission Sunday afternoon on details of the administration of protectorates over European possessions in the Americas. Lopez de Mesa, chief of the Colombian delegation, said it was withdrawn to speed final action.

Menace Pointed Out
The "Act of Havana," noting that conquest of European-held possessions in the Americas may be attempted "as a result of the present European war" and thus may imperil "the essence and form of American institutions" and that inter-American solidarity "demands a policy of vigilance and defense," points to the "grave menace" of these colonies becoming "strategic centers of aggression against the American continent."

It then declares: "When American islands of areas at present held by non-American nations are in danger of becoming the subject-matter of exchange of territories or sovereignty, the American republics x x x may establish regions of provisional administration."

Such administration would be "exercised with the dual purpose of contributing to the safety and defense of the continent and for the economic, political and social benefit of the said areas."

The act provides for the formation of an emergency committee of 21 members, one from each of the republics, which will be considered constituted as soon as two-thirds of its members have been appointed by their governments.

In an emergency, however, it stipulates that "any of the American republics, individually or jointly with others, shall have the right to act in a manner required for its defense or the defense of the continent."

Theater Attractions

Superb color photography of one of America's most beautiful states is the chief attraction of the film, "Maryland," which shows at the State tonight and Tuesday.

The cast, boasting three Academy award winners, Walter Brennan, Fay Bainter and Hattie McDaniel, also includes John Payne, Charlie Ruggles, Brenda Joyce, Marjorie Weaver, Sidney Blackmer, Robert Lowery and Ben Carter.

Though the three performers who have made past performances surpass all others in a given year are wasted in merely commonplace roles, the picture is benefited by their good work. But even capable players in a more tightly written narrative would have much to do to steal the spotlight from the beautiful scenic sequences of the film.

The story concerns a family proud of its traditions, its horses. When the owner is thrown and killed during a race, his wife becomes embittered and orders his mount destroyed and all the other horses disposed of. Her young son she sent to England to be educated, away from the horseracing clans. Returning when his education is finished, the son displays the love of horses and racing which his mother has tried to keep him from. He falls in love with the young daughter of his mother's horse trainer. The young people discover that his father's famous mount the day he was killed was not destroyed and that her foal is entered in the historic Maryland Hunt Cup race. The boy determines to ride the entry, against his mother's wishes. Tradition and pride come to the fore as the mother watches her son ride his horse to victory.
